

Exhibit B

Photo: ©1999 James Oliver Lewis, 1972-1998

Work of J. Oliver Lewis is available at 211V.com. Image taken at Lewis Family Farm by Oliver well before his death on a shoot, December 14th, 1998, in Ecuador.

the note in the writing, and funded by state land, and funded by Nature Conservancy money. Note:

<http://www.uncommongoods.com> >> Oliver, for our son's memorial in photography, donated by his brothers and sister, purchase money credited to Nature Conservancy in the name of James Oliver Lewis, born April 17, 1972, died December 14, 1998.

We know who's in charge here: government, motivated by the property interests of the few, abusive to the many, violating law and the courts, day after day, for 37 years, a rogue agency in need of honest management.

With the Bench Cozied Up to the Bar, the Lawyers Can't Lose

By Adam Liptak, New York Times, August 27, 2007

Do Judges Systematically Favor the Interests of the Legal Profession?
By Benjamin H. Barton

The Secret Life of Judges
By Dennis G. Jacobs

Unlike the other timelines on this site, we present this in reverse chronological order with the newest documents on top.

Appeal-related documents are presented in their respective cases. Click the links below for those timelines.

On August 17, 2009, the Adirondack Park Agency silently let the time expire to seek permission from the Court of Appeals to appeal the Appellate Division's unanimous decision affirming the Lewis Family Farm's complete victory in the Essex County Supreme Court. The Lewis Family Farm's

The Dignity of Emergence.

